

FASEB Excellence in Science Award – Mid-Career Investigator

- “Rising Star” in biological and biomedical research
- Eligibility: Individuals within seven to 15 years of first independent faculty/research scientist position
  - Scientific achievements including landmark discoveries, high impact publications, and scientific leadership
  - Demonstrated impacts on career development, including mentorship of graduate students and postdocs, as well as teaching efforts
  - Participation in university service, professional organization, or other form of community outreach
- Nomination Package:
  - Nomination letter from member of FASEB society
  - Nominee’s complete CV
  - Five publications demonstrating nominee’s most impactful scientific contributions
  - Three letters of support illustrating nominee’s impact on research and mentoring/career development
- Award:
  - $5,000 unrestricted research grant
  - Presentation of a special Excellence in Science Award lecture at annual meeting of FASEB member society of awardee’s choice
  - Registration, travel, and up to two nights hotel associated with presentation of award lecture