PRESS RELEASE – March 2008

Bethesda, MD – The Scholarly Publishers' Collaborative Network (SPCNet) is pleased to announce the addition of American Psychiatric Publishing, Inc. (APPI) to their roster of publisher partners. Through their collaboration in SPCNet, these scholarly publishers are able to provide a “one-stop shop” featuring leading scholarly journals for the library community throughout North America.

Through SPCNet, library consortia will be able to subscribe to APPI's DSM Premium collection at PsychiatryOnline.com. A DSM Premium subscription provides access to ten reference books including DSM-IV-TR® and other DSM Library titles, The American Psychiatric Publishing Textbook of Psychiatry, and Gabbar's Treatments of Psychiatric Disorders, as well as five peer-reviewed journals: American Journal of Psychiatry, Psychiatric Services, Academic Psychiatry, Journal of Neuropsychiatry and Clinical Neurosciences, and Psychosomatics. SPCNet will sell APPI's journals on an individual title basis as well.

“APPI is very excited to partner with SPCNet and this well-respected group of nonprofit society publishers,” said Bob Pursell, Director of APPI Sales & Marketing. “Together our scholarly book and journal content reflects the highest standards in quality, value, and accuracy, and we look forward to SPCNet's assistance in bringing it to library consortia so we can help educate the widest possible number of people.”

About the Scholarly Publishers' Collaborative Network

The Scholarly Publishers' Collaborative Network (SPCNet) is the sales arm for the FASEB Office of Publications. SPCNet will represent scholarly journals from both FASEB member societies and non-FASEB member societies with the aim to increase market penetration and revenue for the publishers through subscription sales to library consortia and establish relationships with all institutional customers and prospects through promotion, education, and marketing programs. The publisher partners include; American Society for Investigative Pathology, American Society for Nutrition, Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology, Genetics Society of America, Society for Leukocyte Biology, The American Association for Immunologists and The American Physiological Society. For more information, visit www.faseb.org/SPCNet

About The Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology

FASEB comprises 21 nonprofit societies with more than 80,000 members, making it the largest coalition of biomedical research associations in the United States. FASEB advances biological science through collaborative advocacy for research policies that promote scientific progress and education and lead to improvements in human health.
