The Mechanisms of Allostasis Conference: Stressed or Stressed Out

Jointly hosted by FASEB and The Endocrine Society

September 18-22, 2022 | New Orleans, LA

Application for Reimbursement:

Background: The organizers of the Mechanisms of Allostasis Conference have available funds to support participation by early career scientists, women, and groups that are underrepresented in the biomedical research workforce at the Conference. Some funds are available for speakers who have demonstrated need, or participants with childcare responsibilities who expect to incur additional childcare costs during the conference.

| Who is Eligible | Support Type | Number of Grants or Awards Available | Value | Description |
|--|-----------------|--------------------------------------|---------|--|
| Invited Speakers | Speaker support | 4 | $1,000 | To provide support for up to 4 invited speakers, exclusive to early-career women scientists or scientists who identify as from underrepresented minority groups. |
| Any Graduate Student or Postdoctoral Fellow | Travel grant | 20 | $500 | 20 travel grants for Graduate Students and Postdoc trainees. |
| Selected Speakers for the Bob Handa Early Career and Trainee Award Symposium | Speaker award | 6 | $500 | Awarded to six high-scoring abstracts selected to deliver a 15 minute talk during the Bob Handa Early Career and Trainee Award Symposium. |
| Any Early Career scientist who presents a poster | Poster award | 6 | $250 | Top-scoring poster presentations as evaluated by faculty judges. |
| Any scientist with childcare responsibilities | Childcare grant | 4 | $500 | Grants for awards for up to four attendees with childcare responsibilities – funds can be used for on-site or at-home childcare responsibilities |
